A REMEDY FOR HAITI ET AL.

Haiti is engaged in one of her pe rennial independence jags. The president of the republic, old Nord Alexis, has held office longer than other ambitious minds believe he is entitled to, and the usual method of changing rulers, by means of a revolution, has been invoked.

It appears from the accounts of this fresh outburst for freedom that the rebels have succeeded, and that before many days Haiti will be blessed or blighted with a new executive. Alexis is old and feeble and cowardly. His army was tattered and torn, and there were no longer government funds for bolstering up its pride and tendance from headquarters at Omapatriotism. Most of the professional fighters have gone over to the side of General Simon, the pretender to the throne, figuring that there is a better prospect of "spoils" under his leader- ereign Clerk John T. demonstrations favoring a change to government wouln't amount to much and might be allowed to proceed in a perfectly friendly spirit. But unfortunately for their governments, some Americans and Germans and Frenchmen and other venturesome foreign. ers have moved down there and engaged in business. Consequently, when General Fudge or Admiral Smudge hears the presidential bee buzzing about his ears and drums up an army to pursue the phantom it devolves upon governments with navies at their disposal to rush a goodly number of warships to Port Au Prince or some other landing place in order to see that the blood-spill ing and property looting is confined as much as possible to natives and as little as possible to alien subjects. We have gone on these wild goose chases with our cruisers and battleships so many times and wasted so much coal that the strain on nerve and purse is beginning to tell. What to do, however, is a gloomy looking problem.

One method would be to order all the foreigners home and let the bet gerents fight with a free rein. Another would be the creation of an international house of correction and confinement therein in Haiti, San Domip. go, Venezuela and Central America under interminable sentences.

POSTOFFICES AND CIVIL SERVICE

Every time the civil service has been extended, whether by Cleveland. Harrison or Roosevell, the act has met with public approval. So it is with the order just issued by the president, which places upwards of 5.000 fourth class postmasters on the merit system.

There never has been any more reason why fourth class postmasters should be the spoils of a presidential election than railway mail clerks or other government employes, who long have had to pass examinations in order to secure their positions. That the new regulation which fortunately applies to Missouri, will prove popu lar goes without saying.

We shall have better postmasters, better postoffices, better facilities and better service all around. # A Remarkable Letter

New York city has for some time past established stations where those too poor to get Anti-Toxin might be provided free of charge. The use of Anti-Toxin as a remedy for the terrible scourge of diphtheria has been quite general, and the expense sttending its use has been so great, including the cost of making the bacteriolegical examinations in order to determine if or not the patient has diphtheria, that New York among other cities has done her best to provide for her poor who become stricken with the dreaded malady. Part of the cost attending the use of Anti-Toxin arises from the necessity of proving to a certainty that the sufferer really has a case of diphtheria, as a great man; able physicians maintain that unless the patient has diphtheria that the administering of Antl-Toxin is highly dangerous.

I have known whole cities and towns living in dread of an epidemic of diphtheria. CHAPTER I.

TVELYN GRANGE is one of the show places of Long Island. It occupies a hill crest commanding the great Hempstead plains, made beautiful by its fine graduations of distance and color. To the left lies the wooded rolling country of Wheatley Hills, and but a few motor miles away the blue waters of the Sound indent the Island's shore. The house—a vast edifice of pale red brick with white trim-possesses terraces bordered by marble balustrades, descending in steep succession; each a giant step of flowers, divided down the middle by a marble staircase alternating with pebbled pathways. The right wing of the mansion is devoted to the luxurious housing of its guests. The left wing contains the servants' quarters and the necessary array of kitchens. Detached buildings for squash and bowls offer exercise and pleasure for dark and sullen days. In the distance the great bulk of the stables lies shrouded in huge trees, whence a faint yapping from the crowded kennels is almost always audible.

It was Wendham's first visit to the Grange, and, as he drove up the long, leaf littered road in the gathering dusk, he was unprepared for the imposing structure that met his sight. "Really," he said to Mrs. Lawdon, who had arrived on the same train, and sat beside him enveloped in chinchilla and grey veils, seem the proper thing for just a plain Mister, does it?"

"Doesn't look heartbroken," she commented to herself, as she turned to examine his appearance under cover of admiring the passing landscape. She saw a strong-featured, keen-eyed man of powerful build, whose hair, though prematurely grey, did not age his appearance, chiefly because of the boyish sparkle of his unusually handsome eyes, and the affectionate humor of his flexible mouth-"Decidedly handsome," thought Mrs. Lawdon, with a dab at the gilt fringes of her hair. "I wonder why she didn't take him-they say old Gaynor was a pill." Aloud she said, "Mrs. Gaynor's to be one of this house party. Did you see her abroad? She was over there more than a year after Mr. Gaynor died."

The carriage drew up before the main entrance, whose white columns seemed vast in the soft electric illumination from the dull glass globes guarding the doorway. The footman rang the bell and returned for Wendham's simple suitcase and Mrs. Lawdon's elaborate traveling empedimenta. The new arrivals entered and a moment later Mrs. Evelyn, in a floating teagown, was extending languid greatings. Evelyn, however, made up in heartiness for his wife's tepid cordiality. "Nobody minded Patty, anyway; it was just her way." Mrs. Lawdon, nor being familiar with her hostess's peculiarities, at once took umbrage. Only the joy of being within the Evelyns' exclusive portals prevented her from immediate rudeness. She contented herself with a mental note to "get even," and noisily devoted herself to Mr. Evelyn and Alice Rawlins, who entered in her cross-country riding trousers, high boots and gray frock coat, as alert and vigorous as a young Amazon.

"Hello, Kate, have some tea, have a highball? Pat, there, will never think to ask you. Better warm up a bit before we go to 'red up' as the "a title should go with it. Doesn't countries say. A tall, slender, white-clad woman rose from behind the elaborate tea-table where she had been presiding, and advanced cordially. "Oh, "And Charlie married!—you got Boyd!" she exclaimed, "it is good to me they were sent to Vienna or lost its cameo whiteness in a soft flush of pleasure, while her dark, heavily-ringed eyes lighted as from within. Mrs. Lawdon's heart warmed. She forgave her hostess's apparent aloofness for the sake of this most desirable introduction. But before she was able to do more than bow cordially and take breath for an appropriate speech, the prize was removed by the doctor's prompt seizure of the lady's attention. Once more Mrs. Lawdon devoted herself to Alice and Cass Evelyn. Wendham and Mrs. Gaynor had become absorbed in talk. Every moment her charm took stronger hold upon him, but he could not but the tell-tale pallor, and the bruised, eyes. "I wish I'd never studied medicine, when I see you, Nellie; it

"Oh," she added hastily, "I had to make my living, and I was left part owner of a racing stable when my husband died. I've been very successful, didn't you know? I'm very busy and my correspondence alone is enough to wear me out."

"That reminds me," he said abruptly, "I was entrusted with something for you. Let me give it to you now, before I forget it." From an inner pocket he drew forth a thin, foreign-stamped letter. Benton, Ill., Dec. 4 .- Mrs. Reuben F. Parrish, widow of the Illinois Central station agent at Mulkeytown, in connection with whose death last March Dr. B. F. Brayfield, one of the best known physicians in Southern Illinois, is under indictment on charge of murder by poisoning, told an interesting story here yesterday. When informed that the state intends to exhume the body of her husband at the cemetery in Richview for the purpose of making a chemical analysis, she said that while she herself was sick at the same time as her husband and with similar symptoms, she took such quantities of strychnine for medicine that, had she died and her body been examined, the suthori-Birth of Baby Ended Argument Be- ties might have concluded that she war murdered.

Mrs. Parrish said she did not know whether her husband was given the same kind of medicine, but Dr. Brayfield, when informed of her statements, admitted he gave Parrish one dose of strychnine on the first day he was sick, but had no knowledge of any being administered afterward. The statements of Mrs. Parrish and Dr. Brayfield were made after the accused physician had been admitted to bail in the sum of $5,000, following formal pleas of not guilty to the in-

SEDALIA THEATER.

While "Lena Rivers," as a play, must necessarily be a replication of country life, as some of its scenes are laid in the little village of Slocumville, Mass., it must not be taken that the work belongs to the type of dramatic production known as the "b'gosh drama." "Lena Rivers" could never be a hayseed play in any sense of the word. Country scenes are shown in the comedy and country types of character are made use of. but there its likeness to rural plays ceases. "Fritz, the Wandering Musician." Joe Hortiz, the young and capable artist, needs no introduction to a local audience, for he has charmed them before with his tuneful melcdies, since he has branched out into modern and up to date plays, fike wise audiences all over the country. with his ever to be remembeerd "Our Friend Fritz." Now he is equipped with the best stage medium for the dispay of his taledts that he has ever had. "Fritz, the Wandering Mus!cian," the play, is what might well be termed a musical comedy drama. It is in four acts from the pen of Crane Wilbur, a rising playwright: s clean and bright as a new pin; full to the brim of interesting and sensational periods, and will hold the interest of an audience from the rise of the curtain to its final fall

THE WELLS-FARGO COMPANY'S PROPOSED 90 PER CENT RATE INCREASE.

COACH CAB AND CABOOSE ITEMS

Matters of Interest Picked Up From Various Sources for the Benefit of Democrat-Sentinel Readers.

The Wells-Fargo company's proposed increase of ninety per cent in express rates on merchandise between eastern points and Pacific coast terminals, to take effect next week, has aroused a veritable storm of protest from the merchants of the Pacific coast, and a hearing will be held here tomorrow in San Francisco before Interstate Commerce Commissioner Lane, at which the matter will be considered.

The proposed new rate applies only to shipments exceeding 500 pounds, and it is intended to circumvent the system devised by coast merchants who have been in the practice of consolidating shipments in New York and forwarding them in such quantities as to take advantage of the present tariff, which ranges from $7 per 100 pounds on lots of 20,000 pounds to $12 on lots of 500 pounds.

A rule has been made by the company that these rates can be used only when the shipments are property of one owner.

Many liquor dealers are anarchists in every fiber of their beings. There traffic is founded on the infirmities and follies of men, and on the helplessness and sufferings of women and children. No law, human or divine, is sacred to them Whatever the law of any state maybe they are determined to elude and break it. This is proven by the fact that they always see to it that the police and law enforcement officers; low them to be elected. They are today running advertisements in papers in Ohio and Kentucky like this: "If you live in a dry county in Ohio, Kentucky or Indiana, and will send your name to us, we will show you how you can make big money in a strictly confidential and honorable way." It is plain that they are trying to get agents in dry counties. Just such spirit and such methods as this is exactly what is getting the liquor dealers in so much trouble. Let the work go on until county by county, town by town, state by state, these anarchists are driven from the abode of men.

MAY BE A BASEBALL WAR

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION ARE REBELLIOUS.

nsurgents Are Intent Upon Securing What They Term Their Rights-Outcome Can't Be Predicted.

New York, Dec. 4.-With the gath ering today of the generals and captains of the rebellious Eastern League and American association, preliminary to tomorrow's council of war, it becomes increasingly evident that the United States of Baseball is on the verge of a destructive civil war. Although outwardly preserving a cool demeanor and manifesting the conversational proclivities of clams, the rebels have blood in their eyes and show in the set expression of their countenances a determination of spirit that will brook no trifling. The insurgents are intent upon securing what they consider their "rights," and the dove of peace is on ly dimly discernable in the dim distance, while the dogs of war are tugging at their chains, anxious to be

This proposition was turned down coldly, only the petitioners voting for the resolution. The dissatisfied leagues next applied for control of the national board of arbitration and again got the frosty mitt. As a last resort, President O'Brien, of the American association, petitioned for his circuit and the Eastern league to withdraw from the National association, and requested permission to negotiate with the American and Natonal leagues for a working agree ment. Both sides have taken what they term an unalterable stand, and un less one of them weakens, students of baseball politics declare there is likelihood of another major or nearmajor league combination, consisting of the bolting leagues.

It is said the National commission will go almost any length to aviod this, as the bolting leagues consti tute almost the only market for players whom the American and National leagues wish to dispose of. to Unofficial Reports the Subscriptions Are Far in Excess of the Sum to Be Issued.

Washington, Dec. 4 .- Investors de siring a share of the new issue of $30,000,000 Panama canal 2 pe: cent gold bonds will have to hurry, as the time allotted by the treasury department for receiving subscriptions will expire at the close of business comor row. According to unofficial reports the subscriptions are already far in excess of the amount to be issued, despite the fact that the bonds will command a premium and will bear only 2 per cent interest.

The bonds will be dated November tice for the cure of woman's peculiar weaknesses and ailments. 1, 1908, thus making this a new issue, and interest will begin as of that date. They will mature in thirty years, but may be redeemed in ten years. Each bid must be accompanied by a certified check for 2 per cent of the amount of the bid.

The Spooner act providing for building the canal authorized the issuance of bonds to the amount of $130, 900,000 and under it there have already been two sales, one aggregat ing $30,000,000 and the other $24,-000,000. The permit sale will bring the total up to $84,000,000, leaving but $46,000,000 more to be sold.

Secretary Cortelyou said that no significance attaches to this issue at this time: that the expenses of building the canal warrant the issue of

The cost of the big ditch has thus far exceeded the amount realized through selling bonds by more than $28,000,000. The additional sums have been paid from the working balances on hand in the treasury. Today this working balance aggregates but about $18,000,000, and it is considered inexpedient to reduce it fur-

It is evident that legislation will be necessary in the near future to provide funds for continuing the canal work. When the remaining $40,300,000 authorized has been expended the issuance of additional bonds must be authorized as the threatened heavy deficit in the treasury will not permit the application of any more cash from the working balance. In fact, it is probable congress will be reuested to make good the $28,000,000 already paid from that source.

For the approaching issue the coupon bonds will be issued in denominations of $20, $100 and $1,000, and the registered bonds of $20, $100, $1,000 and $10,000. WHY NOT SEDALIA, TOO?

Could Professional Ball Club Make It Pay Here!

Here's an editorial from the Leavenworth Times on the baseball sftuation that night be applicable to Sedalia:

The last baseball season was the first one for a number of years that Leavenworth has been without a league team. After successive experiments at attempting to call out patronage from this city, and after a considerable loss of money, together with a liberal quantity of anxiety, the stockholders in the baseball association were compelled to admit that baseball in Leavenworth would not

The absence last summer of the splendid game which the people of Leavenworth were formerly privileged to witness at Association park has sharply whetted the appetites of at least the fans for more of them. In discussing the practicability of once more applying for a franchise in the Western association, this should be taken into account.

Furthermore, it is obvious enough that the people of Leavenworth are spending more money for amusements than ever before, and as attendance at amusement places is a habit that grows amazingly, it may be that this class will welcome such a diversion as baseball for the summer months and patronize it liberally. It would appear that conditions are now more favorable for maintaining a member ship in a good baseball league than they have been for a number of years

FINE FLAVOR OF MEAT FOUND ON THE TABLE OF THE AGRICULTURIST.

IT IS UNLIKE PACKING HOUSE PRODUCT

Board of Agriculture, Gives His Experience in the Curing of Meat.

One thing that almost invariably impresses the city man who goes to the country for a visit is the fine flavor of the meat found on the farmer's table. It is so unlike the ordinary packing house product that it is hard to realize that such a difference is possible in meat coming from the same kind of animals. Take an old country cured ham, for instance. Can you imagine anything finer in flavor? It smells good and tastes better. Such meat, once eaten, is never forgotten. No wonder that the old-time country darkies had a saying, "sweet as ham bone." Now that "hog-killing" time is again at hand, the following from George B. Ellis, secretary of the Missouri state board of agriculture, will be of interest to every farmer who likes sugar-cured meat. Mr. El

"For thirty years I have used a method for salting and curing meats that has been very satisfactory, and our meat has been complimented by a great many people who have eaten at our table. I do not think this is the only way, but it is surely a good way and I will give it to you for what it is worth. Some people prefer dry salting, but I prefer the brine method, and it keeps the meat cleaner and I think safer in a very warm spell

"It is necessary to have good healthy and well fattened hogs to start with, and to know how to properly divide and trim the carcass, but that phase of the question I will not take up I would prefer to butcher when the weather is only moderately cold, and when it is just a little below freezing. If the meat is allowed to be frozen bard before it is put in the brine it will not take salt read! ly.
